

I am an Artist Written by: Randell Adjei

I am an artist
And I have no time to be silent no time to allow these words to asphyxiate my ancestry amidst this violence this despair can't deny the world my gift because of fear.
Living a life of purpose and service I will not die with my gifts still in here Inspired by my pain and how close death came images of a tombstone Inscribed with my name and just then, i snapped back to a new era - a new lane and then my real eye realized that i could be the one to make a change

I ... am an artist
creator of lyrical calligraphy take you on a journey with my soliloquies literary imageries full of healing may my words add meaning to your life and the feelings you left behind with the things that i write may my words penetrate your soul Levitating your being beyond the thoughts you think you know Because ignoring the call of our dreams can be lethal Especially when you tell your BIG dreams to small minded people

Pumping in the depths of me is my heartistry this life giving gift that i was given how can i deny the world the gift of the creators imprint?
How dare i suppress the talents etched in the flesh of my chest?
Am i not grateful?
Do i not cherish it?
Randell, have you not realized that this is your ticket to the exodus?
When chasing our dreams we sometimes ask if its worth it but have we not realized that not doing it will cause the world a disservice?
A failure to fulfill our purpose .

I am an artist
persistently pushing pens and pencils living in my purpose practicing my pure potential We as artists must get creating when the world is devastated we are the beacons of hope healing to suicide notes we change people's lives with this gift so no matter how rough it gets, don't quit!
Know you can push beyond the limits You are an image of the infinite you are magnificent creation every choice we make filled our life's pages the road ahead will be tough but remain patient know that you are designing magic in the making so, when the blueprint of your story is read, will it free the world from the matrix?

- @RandellAdjei